Jet Type-ratings Now Available

PEA announces new jet type-rating courses offered in Airbus A-320 and Boeing B-737NG aircraft. Included is ground school training, via distance learning or in a traditional classroom format, and state-of-the-art computer simulation training in a commercial airline facility. Most of the ground school requirements can even be completed via personal computer, at the student's own pace, with the Virtual Distance Learning option.

These specialized programs are for individuals seeking pilot certification and aircraft type ratings on the widely-used A320 and B737NG aircraft. Both initial type ratings and recurrent training are offered. Ghassan Reslan, Chief Executive Officer of Phoenix East said: "These new type-ratings Phoenix East is now offering will be of special interest to international students, as they provide a more rapid, more economical way to become fully prepared to be quickly hired by an airline. This could be a significant advantage in starting a career as a professional pilot. For U.S. students, having a type-rating can also position you higher up the list for employment with an airline than many other applicants."

Course instructors are all highly experienced Airbus and Boeing captains who have logged thousands of hours of flight time and student instruction. They excel in providing personalized training to each student, as well as assisting the student in completing the program rapidly.

Phoenix East Aviation is partnering with AeroStar Training Services, an FAA Certified 142 training facility to conduct these programs. Classroom facilities are state-of-the-art with an interactive training environment. The highest level simulators with optimal visual and motion systems are used, as well as the Virtual Flight Deck (VFD) training system. Students are also allowed unlimited practice time on VFD 24/7. The training program's software is used by airlines worldwide and includes Aerosim advanced computer-based instruction.

Where Are They Now?

PEA Graduate Is First Officer at Trans Maldivian Airways.

Nathasha Latheef (middle) with colleagues.

We are sometimes asked where former PEA students are currently. For a long list of the airlines for which some of them are flying, see the "What's New" section of www.pea.com. For a more personal look meet Nathasha Latheef a PEA graduate. Below is a letter she wrote to her friends at PEA.

To my friends at PEA:
Flying was my lifelong dream ever since I was a little girl. I didn't just want to get my pilot license and run back home and start flying as a career. I wanted to make sure I had the quality and knowledge to become not just a pilot, but to be a great one. So with the recommendation of my boss, who was the Chief Pilot in one of the biggest airlines in the Maldives,

I chose PEA out of thousands of flying schools.

It makes such a big difference having experienced instructors that care about your training and have the knowledge to help you achieve your goals and improve your skills. Add to that a busy aerodrome where you get to hear some major airlines come in for landing on the same frequencies and the same runway as you — a beginner aviator's heaven!

I must say, PEA on my CV was one of the factors that helped me earn my first job as a First Officer at Trans Maldivian Airways. I love everything about my job. Getting to fly five days a week, enjoying a bird's eye view on all the nice things that comes with white sandy beaches, sun, crystal blue water and carrying not just passengers but sometimes the very important ones. I couldn't have asked for more.

My next goal is to do my ATPL at PEA next year.

Best regards, Nathasha Latheef

WING TIPS

Always Prepare for the Unexpected:
Just because you're flying the pattern correctly doesn't mean everyone is. So always be prepared to meet someone coming the other way or suddenly appearing on a converging course from the side. If another aircraft is on a collision course, remember to turn right to avoid them, and if you are approached from your right, you must give way. Keep in mind, however, that different countries do have different pattern joining procedures. You join the pattern in the US at 45 degrees, but the French and British version of the overhead join is different from that.

On a cross-country it can happen that an airport closes just as you reach it. Coastal airfields can suddenly close due to fog, or a heavy shower with the associated local turbulence and wind shear might stop you from landing. Do what military pilots do: Have a diversion field in mind and ample fuel to reach it, just in case a situation like this occurs.
